Kaliningrad City and Kaliningrad Region

KALININGRAD REGION

As shown on the map, the Kaliningrad region is situated at the southeastern coast of the Baltic Sea. The population of the Kaliningrad Region is about 1 million inhabitants, out of which about 450 thousand citizens live in the city of Kaliningrad.

The region's area comprises 15 thousand square kilometers and is entirely separated from the rest of Russia. It borders on Poland in the southwest and Lithuania in the southeast. In the north, it's rimmed by the Baltic Sea.

Unique and world's largest deposits of amber are located in the territory of the Kaliningrad region, in Yantarny. Up to 90% of world's deposits of amber are there. We can arrange a trip to the amber mining for you. The length of the seacoast is about 140 km including 100 km of sand beaches. There are two gulfs - the Curonian Gulf and the Vislinsky Gulf.

CITY OF KALININGRAD

Kaliningrad is a picturesque city divided by the Pregel (Pregolya) River. It has a number of lakes and ponds. One of the most attractive features of Kaliningrad is its vast greenery: parks, forests, and trees in the streets.

Founded in XIII century as Königsberg, the city had been a capital of German East Prussia until the Potsdam Conference in 1945, when one third of East Prussia including the city was annexed by the Soviet Union. The original local residents were deported to Germany and newcomers from all over the Soviet Union - mostly from central Russia - settled in the region.

The city was renamed after M.I. Kalinin, who had an informal title of the all-Union's 'master' under Stalin. In the 1960s-70s the city was largely rebuilt in a Soviet style, so nowadays one can see a combination of the Soviet 'khrushchevki' and 'brezhnevki' ('match-box' houses popular during the times of Khrushchev and Brezhnev) and German mansions.

The city's architecture is a vivid witness of the city's history. People's attitude towards the past of the region has changed radically in the last two decades. Most of the Kaliningrad citizens are now proud of the city's past and take care to preserve and restore the remains of the historical heritage.

KALININGRAD MUSEUMS AND THEATERS

You might want to visit the Museum of World's Ocean, the only museum of this type in Russia. You will step on the legendary research ship 'Vityaz', which is moored idle and is now a museum piece. Onboard the "Vityaz" there's a splendid collection of the material and photographs of the underwater world, including various gizmos and devices, replicas and originals.

You can visit the Regional History and Art Museum, situated in a beautiful building right by the pond called Nizhny. The museum has several affiliates, the most important of them are the 'Blindage' and the 'Fifth Fortress'. The Museum of Amber has the world's most unique collection of amber and jewelries. You should definitely visit this museum. The Art Gallery with its eight exhibition halls is worth seeing too.

The Botanical Garden is open to public all year round and cherishes a collection of more than 3 thousand outdoor plant species and about a thousand indoor plants grown in nurseries. The Kaliningrad Zoo, which is more than a hundred years old, houses 400 animal species and 150 types of rare plants.

The Kaliningrad Drama Theatre was opened back in 1947. There are a number of other theatres in the city. One of them is located in several minutes walking from school – Kaliningrad Musical Theatre. There is also a well-known 'Tilzit-theatre' located in Sovetsk, who gained recognition in Russia and Europe. Upon your request, we can arrange a visit to it to see one of its wonderful performances. There are two concert organ-halls, one in Kaliningrad and another in Svetlogorsk. So, learning Russian with "Privet!" in Kaliningrad will bring you a lot of joy and fun!
